

Islam in South Asia

SPRING 2017

INSTRUCTOR: FARINA MIR / FMIR@UMICH.EDU

disc Digital Islamic Studies Curriculum
digitalislam.umich.edu

SEMINAR: TUESDAY/THURSDAY 11:30-1:00 (EST)
FOR DISCUSSION TIMES, CHECK THE COURSE GUIDE

Islam in South Asia is taught from the University of Michigan by Farina Mir, an expert in the field of the social, cultural, and religious histories of late-colonial India, and shared virtually with Rutgers University. The course will introduce students to the history of Muslim communities and institutions in South Asia, as well as the broad historical currents of the expansion of Islam in the Indian subcontinent.

The course meets twice a week in real-time using video conferencing technology and telepresence. Throughout the semester, Rutgers students will study with a local adjunct professor and will have the opportunity to partake in on-site visits with Prof. Mir. Students are able to enroll directly at Rutgers University for course credit. For more details, including textbook information and instructions on enrolling, please contact Susan Rosario (srosa@rci.rutgers.edu).

Offered jointly by:

M UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

RUTGERS
THE STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW JERSEY

Course Number

ASIAN 342

HIST 325

MEMS 325

NEAREAST 375

RELIGION 325

Course Number

RELIGION 393

For further information:

ARIEL MALLETT, University of Michigan DISC
digital.islam@umich.edu

This course is offered as part of the Digital Islamic Studies Curriculum, with sponsorship from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation